

New Brunswick gave me more than a place to live. It gave me a place to belong, build, serve, and raise a family.

I arrived as an international student. New Brunswickers welcomed me, mentored me, believed in my ideas, and trusted me to contribute. That generosity helped me become an entrepreneur, create more than 100 jobs, mentor emerging leaders, serve our communities, and, with my wife Alisha, open our home as foster parents to children who needed a family.

This province invested in me. I believe gratitude should become service. That is why I am putting my name forward for Vice-President, Provincial.

The New Brunswick Liberal Association is my first experience being actively involved in a political party. I have canvassed, supported my local association, taken part in party initiatives, and currently serving as the President of the NBLA Multicultural & Inclusion Commission.

What has kept me engaged is the people. I found a Liberal family where I belong, people who show up, volunteer, organize, and serve because they believe in this province and what we can accomplish together.

Over the next two years, I want to help strengthen that family.

Our 49 constituency associations are the foundation of our party. If elected, I will start by listening to riding presidents, regional directors, commissions, staff, volunteers, and members, then work with them to make our associations more connected, equipped, and empowered to lead.

That means sharing what works across ridings, strengthening communication, expanding training and mentorship, preserving knowledge between elections, and using technology where it makes organizing easier.

I have spent much of my career building companies, teams, and partnerships in technology, healthcare, and community services. One lesson that has stayed with me is strong organizations are not built by one person. They are built by empowering others to lead.

I also want us to keep widening the circle. Whether someone is a lifelong Liberal, a first-time volunteer, a young person, a newcomer, a community leader, or someone who has never imagined themselves in politics, there should be a real path to participate, contribute, and lead.

I believe in Susan Holt's leadership and the work our Liberal team is doing for New Brunswick. The next election will be shaped by the work we begin now, riding by riding, volunteer by volunteer, relationship by relationship.

This is bigger than a title or one election. It is a chance to give back to a province and a Liberal family that gave me a place to belong and to help more people find their own place within it.

I would be honoured to serve as your Vice-President, Provincial and to build the next chapter of our Liberal family together.

Asif Hasan

Candidate for Vice-President, Provincial